

STRATOS

A film by Yannis Economides
In Greek with English subtitles

Official Selection, Berlin International Film Festival

'By night, Stratos works in a bread factory but by day, he's a professional hit man. He needs the cash to free Leonidas from prison because the latter once saved his life when he was behind bars. For Stratos, this is simply a question of honour. We've no idea how many people he's already killed, but we do notice that he still has a conscience. He attentively looks after a neighbour's child, eight-year-old Katerina, as well as her mother and an uncle. At last he has enough money for the prison break-out, but an unexpected turn of events takes place, one of them having to do with Katerina's psychological and physical safety'.
(Berlin Film Festival Catalogue)

'A mood-drenched modern noir in which style becomes an expression of content, a Mediterranean spin on Jean-Pierre Melville or Michael Mann.'

Scott Foundas, Variety

'a stylish, intelligent crime movie'

Geoff Andrew, Sight and Sound
